So far petitions have been prepared for Carlton Cole, president; Theodore Zusag and Maynard Brockman, clerk; Leonard Rought, George Koeller, Everett Merfeld, Joseph Yaeger, Charles Reeser, Walter Baers, Howard Ayres, trustees.

To get the full expression of the will of the people everyone desiring office should get his or her name on the ballot. Any qualified voter residing in the incorporated area may become a candidate. Apply to Harvey Frick for the necessary forms. Only ten signatures are required. Remember Monday is the deadline.

Katherine Priami To Wed Pvt. Robert W. Fredin

Mrs. Ida Priami of Frankfort announces the approaching marriage of her daughter, Katherine to Pvt. Robert W. Fredin of New Lenox, and who is now stationed with the air corp at Scott Field.

The couple will be married July 6th at 7 o'clock in the evening in St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed church in Frankfort. All relatives and friends are cordially invited to the wedding and to the reception in the church parlors following the ceremony.

Mokena Church To Hold Annual Picnic

The annual picnic of St. John's church is to be held next Sunday, rain or shine. If the weather is fair it will be held in the Mokena Park, if it rains it will be held in the church parlors.

Besides the usual contests there will be a horseshoe pitching tournament, ball games between girls, and married versus single men, volley ball, and various booths for amusement and refreshment.

The picnic program starts at twelve noon.

Asks Property Owners To Cut Weeds

The Frankfort Village Board is asking property owners of vacant lots, in that village, to cut the weeds growing on them. The village is cutting the weeds along the outside of side walks where the owners have not done so. This is being done to make the village a more attractive place to live.

Gleaner Meeting At Foss Arbor

A Gleaner district meeting, representing four counties, was held at Foss Arbor on Wednesday nite. Mr. James Frazer of the Maple Street Arbor was elected president of the association.

Village Clerk.

VOWS ARE READ FOR RUTH LOWE, GORDON DOCTOR

St. John's Evangelical church in Mokena was the scene Saturday evening at 8:00 o'clock of the marriage of Miss Ruth Lowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lowe of Mokena and Mr. Gordon Doctor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Doctor of Orland Park.

A pretty back ground was created of ferns, palms, four candelabra and two large white baskets filled with blue delphinium and yellow coreopsis from the garden of Miss Christina Schmidt.

Over 600 people filled the church and witnessed the double ring ceremony read by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Riemann.

Mrs. Donald Maue, cousin of the bride played a group of love songs preceding the service and accompanied Miss Agnes Vernon of Chicago when she sang, "Because", "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer." She also played the processional and recessional.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her father, was lovely in a gown of white satin with a long train and a finger tip veil which was caught with a spray of orange blossoms. She wore a gold brooch, 77 years old, which belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Marti, and carried a bouquet of white gladioli.

The brides cousin, Miss Marjorie Marti was the maid of honor. She wore a blue satin gown and her blue blusher veil was caught by a blue tiera headpiece. She carried yellow daisies. Her sister Corrine C. Marti was bridesmaid and Mrs. Harold Shroats, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. They wore identical gowns of yellow satin and their blusher veils were caught with a yellow tiera. Their flowers were blue delphiniums.

Little Janet M. Maue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Maue as flower girl, wore a white formal georgette dress with a tiera of white sweet peas. She dropped rose petals from a white basket as she preceded the bride to the altar.

The ushers were Mr. Milton C. Woodrich of Mokena and Mr. Richard Fietterer of Orland Park who also lighted the candles.

Serving the groom were Mr. Charles Mullins, Donald Doctor, and Harold Shroats of Orland Park. Their boutonniere and that of the groom's were a white carnation.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in St. Mary's hall which was attended by 450 relatives and friends. The hall was decorated with yellow and blue crepe paper streamers. A four tiered wedding cake graced the bride's table, with Mrs. Roy Kropp, assisted by Mrs. Norman Strassenburg and Mrs. Howard Strassenburg, cutting and serving the cake. The Rhythm Kings from Lyons, Ill., furnished the music for dancing.

The bride's mother wore a gown of Parisian pastel green with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Doctor chose for her sons wedding, a gown of pastel lavender with black accessories and a white carnation corsage.

When the couple departed on a motor trip to Lake Marie at Antioch, Ill., the bride was wearing a pastel blue suit with white accessories and a white carnation corsage.

Upon their return they will make their home for the present with the groom's parents.

The bride is employed at the Rock Island Offices at Englewood and the groom is associated with his father in business. The groom, who was in the army air corp for nearly three years, held the rank of Staff Sergeant. He was a waist gunner and made 35 missions over Germany in 6 months.

Out of town relatives attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gunderson and family of Kempton, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lowe of Emmington, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lowe and family of Kankakee, and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lowe of Chicago. Also cousins of the groom from Rensselaer, Ind. Other guests were from: Chicago Heights, New Lenox, Frankfort, Chicago, Orland Park, Tinley Park, Joliet and Mrs. Juanita Oswald Taggart of Montrose, Cal.

NEW LENOX-FRANKFORT 4-H CLUB ATTENDED CONVENTION

Thirteen members of the Frankfort New Lenox 4H club attended the Northern Illinois 4H club Judging contest at the Curtis Candy Farms in Dundee, and Carey, Illinois July 2 for an all day trip. The highest score winners in the County will compete in a similar judging contest to be held September 6 at the University of Illinois. Those attending the contest at the farms were: Lloyd Cleveland, Howard Handorf, Edmund Knowles, Robert Walker, Donald Hunter, Charles Holm, Everett Holm, William Burkhardt, Donald Stevens, Jack Chestnut, Bette Haas, Katherine McKinley and Gordon Smith.

New Lenox Bride Joins Husband In Japan

Mrs. Ruth Eggman of New Lenox who left about a month ago to join her husband M. Sgt. Luther Eggman in Japan, arrived in Yokohama June 24th according to word received from her. She said she was never a bit sick and enjoyed the trip very much.

With her was another wife, Mrs. Betty Sallade of Akron, Ohio and we can imagine the happy moment when the two husbands came aboard the transport Ainsworth to greet their wives. Mrs. Eggman and Mrs. Sallade were the only two dependents of enlisted men on board the ship.

Mrs. Eggman taught in the grade school at New Lenox for several years.

Golden Wedding Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. John Jungles, who were residents of Homer Twp. for many years, celebrated their fiftieth anniversary at their home in Chicago, Saturday evening, June 29.

Among the guests from Homer were Anna Welter, sister of Mr. Jungles, Mr. and Mrs. John Donahue, Mr. and Mrs. John Welter, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Welter, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Welter and Mr. and Mrs. Barney Welter, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jungles and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Beaver.

Bountiful refreshments were served and many beautiful gifts were presented to the honored couple.

FORMER MOKENA GIRL'S NAME ON HEIREN'S SCRATCH PAD?

Mokena became a little more interested in the Suzanne Degan case of Chicago when a Chicago Daily paper printed a facsimile of a sheet from a scratch pad in a University of Chicago residence hall which contains many names, presumably of students.

Among the names is B. Gee, three times and as Barbara J. Gee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gee, of Chicago, formerly of Mokena, has been a student there for the past two years, friends are wondering if the B. Gee on the pad might mean her.

In talking with Barbara's relatives in Mokena, they said it was not her hand writing at all. None of the names of persons appearing on the scratch pad are involved in the case, the authorities stated. It seems that the names are all written in about the same type of writing and all printed by hand.

FORMER BAND MEMBERS INVITED TO NEW LENOX

An invitation is being extended to former members of bands in the surrounding towns and villages by the Band Director of the New Lenox Band Mr. Reed, to attend the summer practices, regardless of age. Each one should have their own instrument.

Practice hours at 7:30 o'clock on Thursday evenings in the New Lenox school gym.

INJUNCTION ISSUED TO RESTRAIN SLAUGHTERER

Peoria, Ill.—A stipulation by Christ Reckemer, a slaughterer who lives on Route 1, Frankfort, Ill., consenting to an injunction restraining him from further slaughtering in excess of quota has been filed in the U. S. District Court at Chicago.

Action was instituted by enforcement attorneys of the Peoria district, Office of Price Administration, under the authority of Slaughter Control Order No. 2, which was issued pursuant to the Second War Powers Act.

To Hold Card Party

The Women's Auxillary to Wm. Martin Post No. 725, Mokena will hold a Card and Bunco party in Hatch hall Mokena Saturday evening, July 13th. All games start promptly at 8:30 pm.

Farewell Party For Rev. And Mrs. Winters

A farewell party was given Sunday evening by the Frankfort and Green Garden Methodist churches in the latter church for their pastor and wife Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Winter. The former is retiring from the ministry and moving to their farm at St. Jacobs, Ill. where their son is farming.

A program of group songs and some special numbers were presented and much enjoyed. A delicious luncheon was served at the close of the evening.

Rev. and Mrs. Winter were given a gift from the two congregations which they have served for the past two years. Mrs. Winters was also presented a chenille centerpiece from the Young Women's Circle of the Green Garden church.

Dr. Eugene R. Bertermann, Director of Radio for the International Lutheran Hour and summer guest speaker on Bringing Christ to the Nations, June 30, July 7 and 14.

Farmer Fatally Injured When Bale Of Hay Fell On Him

Mr. August Mischewich, 59 of Frankfort was fatally injured Tuesday afternoon when a bale of hay fell on him knocking him from a hay wagon. The accident occurred while hay was being baled at the Mischewich farm.

Mr. Mischewich was knocked unconscious and was removed to Silver Cross hospital. Dr. Raymond Hiroshige who attended him said the injuries were a bad skull fracture and severe head lacerations.

Mr. Mischewich passed away Wednesday afternoon without regaining consciousness.

The body was removed to the Endikis Funeral Home in Chicago. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Mischewich moved to Frankfort 5 years ago when they purchased the Block farm south of town.

He is survived by his wife, Eva, nee Tarvidas, one son Chester at home, one sister, Anna Kundrat and four brothers all of Chicago.

Injured While Playing Baseball

While Alvin Welter of Homer was playing baseball last Sunday with the Homer Aces vs the Willow Springs team on the latter's diamond, he received serious injuries, which resulted in a hernia the result of sliding into a base.

He was removed to St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet where he underwent surgery at once. He is doing nicely now.

Alvin served four years in the navy as a Sound man 2-c on a sub-chaser in the Pacific with out receiving any injury. He received his honorable discharge this spring.

Abilene Town, Roxy

You had to be fast on the draw to keep your land or your women in "Abilene Town" with Randolph Scott and Ann Dvorak, which will be the featured attraction at the Roxy theatre, at Lockport, beginning Sunday for three days.

The reckless and ruthless conflict between the homesteaders and the cattle barons over the "open range" country in Kansas in the early '70s forms the background for the romantic twist to the theme between Scott, the town marshall and Miss Dvorak, a beautiful song and dance queen. Cattle herders attempt to over run the town with vice while the merchants try vainly to maintain law and order. With the only law being gun-law, thrills aplenty at gun point run at merry rampant pace. Finally, Scott and the dance hall

PRETTY WEDDING IN ST. PETERS CHURCH

St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed church in Frankfort was the scene of a pretty wedding Sunday June 30 at 4 o'clock when Miss Viola Triem, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Triem of Frankfort, became the bride of Mr. Harry Kuhlman, son of Mr. Carl Kuhlmann of Crete, Ill.

Mrs. Erich Bizer played a group of love songs on the organ preceding the service and also played the processional and recessional. She accompanied Mrs. Albert Krusemark, Jr., when she sang, "I Love You Truly," and "O Promise Me."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white slipper satin gown with a full gathered shadow lace skirt. Her long illusion net veil, edged with lace fell from a seed pearl crown. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses, lillies of the valley and blue delphinium and the long ribbon streamers were caught with lily of the valleys. She wore a string of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Doris Hinspeter, maid of honor, wore a pink silk gown with a blue veil caught by seed pearls and carried red roses and lillies of the valley.

Miss Beatrice Bruns of Crete, also attended the bride wearing a light blue silk gown, pink veil with pearls, and carried pink roses and lillies of the valley. Their gowns were made identical to that of the bride's.

Edward Triem served his brother as best man.

Beverly Hussberg of Crete, niece of the groom was flower girl. She was dressed in a similar styled gown.

Norbert Koelling, Norman Triem and Emil Galner cousins of the couple were ushers.

The brides mother chose a printed, blue silk and her corsage was of pink carnations, and the bride's grandmother had a corsage of white carnations.

A white carnation made the boutonniere of all the men participants and also for the bride's grandfather, Mr. Thomas Lemere.

A wedding reception was held in the home of the bride's parents to fifty guests, following the ceremony.

A four tiered wedding cake graced the bride's table. Guests were present from Elmhurst, Melrose Park, Grand Park, Chicago Heights, Beecher, Crete and Monee.

The young couple left for a honeymoon to the Dells of Wisconsin and will make their home with the bride's parents for the present.

New Lenox Library To Be Supported By Taxation?

The New Lenox Women's club met June 2, in the home of Mrs. Josephine Sayers, Mrs. Laura Morris conducted the business meeting and discussed the future plans for the New Lenox library. The petition asking that the library be put on taxation has been signed and presented to the town clerk.

Since no tax levy could be made before the Spring town meeting, the matter will not be voted on before this fall.

There will be no meeting of the club until September, Mrs. Ruby Gougar, the program chairman presented the following program:

"The Items from the Diary of a plain dirt farmer," was read by Mrs. Gougar. Pictures and how to use them for home decorating were discussed, and illustrations were shown. Mrs. Wm. Drake read a short article, "The Woman with the Broom". Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Grace Conroy was a guest at this meeting.

Rents Raised In Mokena

The death of the OPA has been felt in Mokena this week when a number of renters received notice that their rent has been increased.

In one case a family who was paying $22 per month, doing all their repairing and painting has been increased to $40 per month an increase of 82 percent. Another renter received notice of increase of rent from $40 to $50 per month.

The law of Illinois requires a 30 day notice before rent can be boosted.

Other landlords in Mokena have notified their tenants that they will not boost the rent.

queen settle down to build the community of Abilene.

"Tars and Spars" with Alfred Drake and Janet Blair, will be featured at the Roxy theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

Many Improvements To Be Made By Mokena Board

Bids are soon to be received for the new ornamental street lights for Mokena. It is planned to erect 21 such lights on Front street from Division Street to Wolf Road. Each of these lights will be a 6,000 lumen unit and will be erected on concrete posts.

Also 13 new lights will be installed on streets where there are none now and they will be suspended across the street.

A great deal of business was transacted at the monthly meeting of the Mokena Village Board Tuesday evening.

Because of the many complaints received, action is to be taken at once to curb the youth auto speeders on the village streets, and also the problem presented by the very numerous young people riding bicycles on sidewalks and streets. Especially have complaints been received because of the bicycles being parked in front of the Cavett Drug store and Aug. Braun Confectionery in such a number and way to block passing on the sidewalk or if passing is possible, under difficulties, the protruding parts of the bicycles snag hosiery and clothing of pedestrians.

The pigeon and rabbit hutch on the Howard Scheiblich place was declared obnoxious and a public nuisance and a resolution to that effect was sent to the State Board of Health by the Village Board.

Marie Yunker Weds Carl Ginder

On Saturday afternoon, June 29 at 3:30 pm, Miss Marie Yunker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Yunker of Wolf Road, Orland Park and Mr. Carl Ginder of Mokena, Ill., were quietly married in St. John's Evangelical church in Mokena with Rev. Wm Riemann officiating.

The bridal couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. George Bruhn of Mokena. The bride was attired in a light blue dress and wore a corsage of roses. The newlyweds left for a short honeymoon trip, and will reside temporarily with the bride's parents.

New Lenox Church Carnival

The Grace Episcopal church in New Lenox will hold a carnival on the church grounds Thursday evening, July 18 starting at 8 o'clock. There will be good entertainment, music, movies, fancy work booth, good eats etc. Mark the date and plan to attend and have a good time with your friends.

DESERT ROSE

By ROLLIN BROWN

W.N.U. FEATURES

Deputy sheriff Jim Doane sets out to track down a gang of train robbers. After meeting Dolores Alvaro and Monte Garcia he resigns and goes to see Star La Rue. Jim forces La Rue to deed over the ranch which he had stolen from Dolores' father. Later he encounters a posse led by sheriff Flick. They are pursuing five riders. One of them turns out to be Dolores. Jim discovers her in hiding. She seizes his horse and dashes away. Next day Jim hears from the sheriff that he has been deputized to assist in apprehending bank robbers. Jim fears that one of the gang is Dolores. Nevertheless, he takes Garcia with him, and they start out on the trail.

CHAPTER VIII

After a mile or so Doane worked cautiously up a slight rise. He nodded to Monte when he came back, and they went on, changing direction a bit.

For long periods of time now they halted. Doane cannily took advantage of the roll and irregularities of the country, following the gullies and depressions. A mounted figure against the skyline could be seen for miles; so could dust. They drew up the rim of a small, ragged range of rock hills and buttes. Again Doane pulled rein, studying the approaching riders for a long while.

"They'll hit through at about those next buttes," he decided. "That ought to suit us as well as anywhere else."

"This is to be ambush?" asked Monte thoughtfully.

"No," snapped Doane. "We give them the chance to surrender first."

"We are two against five. I do not think these approaching riders will want to—well, surrender."

"We'll take those odds. I'll be glad of 'em!"

"I do not quite understand, my friend."

"Ever since I was a kid, Monte, I've been riding on the side of the law," muttered Doane softly. "This Maxmilla affair now—just one thing left for me to do! A straight road. I got to do it. Flick knew I would. This is bank robbery, killing! . . . But the way things are, Monte, I guess I don't want to ride back. Anyhow I like the odds!"

"Yes?" A steel-hard intensity came into Doane's voice: "Monte, you asked me a question a while ago and here's your answer. You're going to do a thing I can't do. I owe that girl everything—my life; the law owes her something, too, I figure, because of its one-time blindness. D'you see that? When things break now, Monte, you're going to get her out—alone! See? You got to do it! Don't mind anything else. That's why, if you hadn't offered to come with me, I'd have made you come. But I've known from the start that that was your reason for being with me. Now it's a thing you've got to do!"

A Desperate Plan To Save Dolores

On the instant the scene changed. Something moved the coming five riders to forge into a fast lope. Watching them, Doane swung back from the rim. Under shelter, the roan shot forward, Monte beside him. At a furious pace they beat along the far side of the hills, through the boulder-strewn depressions and across the side gullies, in an effort to round the first butte and ride into the face of the five.

Between the buttes of the sharply-defined ridge was a small, slot-like pass, hemmed by sandstone walls of odd formation. Wind-eroded pipes stood up against the walls like deformed fingers or lob-headed stalagmites. Their feet rested in talus from the walls above, banks of slash-edged rock that had fallen down. One end of the tiny, desert-formed pass could not be seen from the other.

Reining the roan, Doane could hear the rattle of shod hoofs echoing between the walls. Monte moved to one side. They halted in the floor of the pass. No words.

Doane's gaze was fixed on the bend of the pass. Waiting. Motionless. He was a figure of steel, steely gun in one hand, muzzle slightly lifted. The blue color of the roan in the afternoon light added to the illusion. Not long to wait—

Hard-riden mounts rounded the turn. As swiftly spade bits checked them, brutally threw the saddle animals to haunch.

For ten seconds riders sat saddle without movement. It was as though the walls of the pass had suddenly closed in and shut these seven off from the rest of the world. Doane's voice was brittle as breaking glass, calling down through the pass:

"Surrender—in the name of the law!"

A harsh laugh answered him. The distance was too great to plainly distinguish features. For an instant Doane wondered how he knew that laugh, where he had heard it before? The sound roused some slow, deep anger in him. It was something instinctive.

"So it's you, huh?"—followed the voice up the canon.

The voice brought instant recognition. The significance of it was stunning. The speaker was Star La Rue!

A tumult of thought broke in Doane's brain. He remembered several things as one. The Maxmilla Cowman's Mortgage and Loan bank had suffered this loss by robbery and killing, according to Flick's telegram—and that was the bank in which La Rue had interest. La Rue, then, must have hit trail from town even before Flick got away with the main posse!

Doane was suddenly able to recognize the four riders with La Rue, substantiating his conclusion. The four were those deputized men Flick had pushed on northward, to Maxmilla City; the four riders Doane had discharged from Rancho Hermanos the morning of his arrival, who had later met up with Flick in San Loreto, joining his first posse in search of the girl. Doane gazed at the five men and his lips curled.

"We've met buzzards instead of hawks, Monte!"

The five were edging slowly forward up the floor of the tiny pass, tense in their saddles. The distance lessened. Doane had a single glance at Monte. At his side Monte was a picture of motionless grace, lips drawn in a set smile.

The first taut deadliness of the scene was even intensified. The five riders did not come forward like one posse approaching other men of the law. Like fire, a new thought snapped in Doane's brain. There was sudden fierce joy in his burning eyes. His lips bit off words, to the approaching La Rue: "Stop where you are!"

He heard La Rue's laugh answer him again. The distance was halved—little over forty yards now. Thirty! The five riders had spread a bit. Each man for himself, Doane could see faces now—white-lipped, stiff, set! He could see what was coming. La Rue called: "All right, Mister Doane. We'll—surrender!"

A gun leaped in La Rue's hand, belched fire, as though to accent the false word. Like a leaden oath hurled after it!

Men crouched in their saddles, like wolves crouching for the throat leap. In the resounding echo of La Rue's shot there came a rattle through the pass, like machine-gun fire.

Doane spurred forward, shooting low over the saddle, the gun a living thing in his hand. Fierce exultation filled him. No conscious thought; no time to consider. This issue was forced. He had declared himself clearly; La Rue understood. Here somehow, between desert walls, was marked the end of a long, long trail.

Monte Garcia's lightning weapons flashed. Monte smiled over white teeth that held his reins. The two rode into twice the fire they gave!

Punctuated, a terrible roar filled the narrow desert pass. The echo rebounded on the walls and seemed to vibrate in the rock and fantastic formation of pipes and lob-heads.

A horse reared high, toppling backwards. Suarez, one-time foreman for Tres Hermanos, suddenly quivered in every muscle and slipped sideways from his saddle. He hit earth face down. Men shouted—

Things happened in flashes. Another horse went unmanageable. A man reeled to foot and fell half across Suarez. La Rue left the saddle, seemingly untouched in the hail of lead . . . Monte plunged into Doane's field of vision. The white smile still on his lips.

Roaring confusion. Racket of hoofs on rocks, animals gone mad. Dust. The fast, terrible bark of the guns over all.

Things happened with a rapidity that the mind struggled to grasp.

A bullet cut Doane's thigh. No pain; just the numbing concussion of it. In the middle of the next stride he felt the roan wince under him. The animal collapsed, hurtling over, rolling with the momentum of the fall. . . .

Doane tugged to get free. One leg had gone under the roan's side. Twisting like a cat, he fired over the fallen animal. Dust swirled over him. The following trigger-pull found his weapon empty.

Almost simultaneously another thing happened. Monte's fast guns were done. With a graceful leap, he vaulted free from the saddle of a heady horse, turned, and as Doane fired his last shot, ran for the shelter of the fallen roan's body.

Monte suddenly paused. He seemed to balance himself—sway—and he came forward only by some supreme effort of will. There was still that set, white smile between his lips. Shivering as though with palsy, hands with the handsome guns outflung, Monte lunged a pace more and fell half across the down horse. Doane caught at his shoulder to pull him on.

A rumbling, great echo growled hoarsely into silence. Suddenly the pass was quiet.

The battle had lasted not longer than fifty seconds. A single mounted man was fleeing down the pass, a riderless horse following. The rattle of shod hoofs was the only sound. Silence now—on the heels of death!

Caught as he was, Doane tugged futilely to pull Monte on to his shelter.

"Nevaire mind—my frien'," muttered Monte. The words came through clenched, white teeth. "Nevaire—"

Monte lay still. Now even the clatter of hoofs had ceased. Struggling, teeth gritted, Doane got at his belt and reloaded. Twisting back, he peered over the roan.

The mounted man had halted at the turn of the pass, waiting undecidedly. Doane saw Suarez and the rider fallen across him, the gun that had just become voiceless in the man's hand. At another spot a boot stuck grotesquely into the air. That might be La Rue. Or again it might not.

Doane pulled again at his caught foot, trying to drag it free with the other boot as a lever on the back of the dead roan. The trapped leg was losing feeling. The wound in his thigh had begun to pain and blood was soaking through his clothing. The man down canon might return at any moment. He wondered about Monte. The fallen Monte Garcia did not stir. Doane reached slowly to touch his shoulder again—

That was when he saw La Rue!

At a distance of less than twenty paces Star La Rue's deadly, intense eyes peered over the belly of one of the fallen horses. That instant Doane also knew that Monte Garcia was not dead. For Monte, wounded, the useless guns in his hands, hissed softly:

"Down!"

The hiss was cut short by the explosion of La Rue's extended weapon. The bullet clipped Doane's skull. He fell back stunned. . . .

Time passing might have been a second or a moment. When Doane remembered he was wiping blood from his eyes and his left hand was red from the wrist down. But the right still held his gun.

Jim Shoots It Out With Star La Rue

His head cleared instantly. To expose any part of his body in an attempt to free himself gave opportunity for La Rue to fire again. Or the instant La Rue sensed his plight he would close on him like a trapped animal. There was Monte to consider. To bring battle over the roan's side now would mean certain death to the helpless Monte. Meanwhile the man at the curve of the canon might have the presence of mind to hit for high ground.

Seconds of time were suddenly infinitely precious. Lying prone, Doane pried with his free boot against the roan. That was the leg with the bullet wound in the thigh. A soft groan escaped his lips. He pushed with all his strength. The trapped foot gave an inch or two—jammed tighter than before. Doane doubled over. With his fingers and hands he began to scrape under the leg—pebbles, rocks and sand.

He fought silently and desperately. Seconds took on the time dimensions of moments. Gradually he was scooping out a tiny depression under the leg. But time was passing. Time! Once more he strained to pull free. Then Monte's soft hiss reached his ears:

"Coming! He's coming!"

There was maniacal strength in Doane's body. Like a wild thing in a trap, he tore free. La Rue took snap aim at a suddenly exposed arm or shoulder. But Doane was loose, foot with boot half torn from it before him. It was a single gesture that turned him on his belly, crawling, coming up.

Gun in hand, crouched, he leaped out!

The lightning of two guns came as one. It was a single last echo that roared through the pass, crashing on the walls. Then one man fought against falling, trying desperately to bring his weapon up again. Just as he toppled the gun exploded, throwing dust against his own stiffly tilting boots.

"Gracias a Dios!" said Monte Garcia softly. And his eyes closed.

Newsman Admit Apprehension of A-Bomb Mission

By WALTER A. SHEAD

WNU Correspondent

ABOARD USS APPALACHIAN (Via Navy Radio)—Civil and military welcoming committees out of the way, with the beauty and color of the Paradise of the Pacific a pleasant memory interlude in the midst of this serious military experiment the "Big Apple" today has her nose pointed westward on the second leg of our hop toward Bikini atoll and the atomic bomb test, the results of which may revolutionize naval tactics. The waters of the Marshall Islands are not new to the Appalachian and the members of her crew who first took her into combat duty in these very waters . . . the conquest and capture of Kwajalein, which is our next port of call. She is a sturdy ship and bears few scars of her tour of duty in the war in the Pacific in the Marshalls, the Admiralties, the Solomons, at Leyte, the Marianas, at Guam and other action since Pearl Harbor. On this tour she is the press ship of Adm. W. H. P. Blandy's task force and aboard are picked newspaper men and representatives of the other media such as news reels, radio, technical magazines, television and others. Although most of them are on other ships of the group, such as the Panamint and the Blue Ridge, there is a sprinkling of scientists aboard and a sort of friendly ribbing going on constantly between the "lay" or mine-run members of the press and these scientific writers, many of whom are members of the "I Am a Frightened Man Club" and predict dire results and dangers to personnel of this task force when the bomb burst, scheduled July 1, takes place.

In spite of their fun-poking, the newspaper men generally privately admit they feel some apprehension and beneath the raillery there is a feeling of tenseness among many of us which increases daily.

The trip thus far from Navy Pier in Oakland to Honolulu, where our two-day stay was all too short, has been like a pleasure cruise but now we are getting down to the serious part of this most stupendous military experiment in history. The information officers aboard ship offer every facility and we are scheduled for a series of round-table conferences to orientate us to the main objectives.

One of the most interesting phases of this operation is the time element. Fourteen different time zones are involved in the operation by virtue of the location of Bikini west of the International Date Line. For instance if the first atomic bomb is dropped at 10 a. m. Monday, July 1, it will be 5 p. m. Sunday, June 30, in Chicago.

As this is written out of Pearl Harbor we still have some 2,200 miles of trackless blue water to traverse at a speed of approximately 11 knots or about 13 miles an hour. Before we reach Kwajalein where we will spend a day viewing the elaborate installations which have been set up in quarters, laboratories, air facilities as a base for the army air corps which will drop the bomb and the 37,000 men.

The logistics and the planning which have gone into this operation will rival those in the invasion of Normandy and scientists in and out of the navy have ready for installation the most elaborate measuring devices to meter actual effects of the explosion on the target array of combat and other ships, army and navy material, live animals tethered aboard some ships and ordnance for army, navy and air of all descriptions.

In addition recording devices, specially constructed cameras for television, radar controlled drone planes, which will fly through the atomic cloud at varying heights will bring back samples of the radio active materials and vapor to be rushed to the laboratories for test. It is this radio activity for the exploded atoms which may be used for the benefit of mankind in peacetime pursuits. As a matter of fact, the Manhattan district is now leasing or has released small portions of radio activated substances to universities and laboratories.

Veterans' SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

G.I.s Attending Church

Religious services in veterans hospitals are not being neglected.

Veterans administration reports that during March, attendance at these services reached an all-time high with 102,024, an increase of 27,000 over the previous month.

Chaplain Crawford W. Brown, director of VA chaplaincy service, said the 83 hospital chaplains, representing 18 religious denominations, also made 10,465 ward visits and 103,400 personal contacts during the month.

The chaplains conducted 297 Protestant services and 483 Catholic masses, in addition to 1,825 other religious services such as Sunday school classes, weekday devotions, prayer meetings and instructions, with 30,000 in attendance. The chaplains also during the month conducted 223 funerals, filled 561 outside speaking engagements in communities surrounding the hospitals, handled 197 welfare cases, officiated at 27 baptisms and 22 marriages and Catholic chaplains administered extreme unction to 215 patients, heard 2,160 confessions and administered Holy Communion to 4,900.

VA is assigning full-time chaplains to every hospital at the rate of approximately 1 chaplain to every 500 patients.

Questions and Answers

Q. My son was a second lieutenant in the army air corps for two years. In parachuting from his crippled plane over China, he received a fractured leg and was carried back 400 miles to the nearest hospital without benefit of anesthetic. Since being honorably discharged, he has married and the first child will be born the latter part of this summer. With our help he managed to save up $2,000 after paying his expenses in the service. This he has used to make a down payment on a farm. Eventually he will receive government aid, but in the meantime his only income is from two cows. We are glad to help them establish their home, but my point is that he has been told he owes $100 income tax. Can this be possible? He was just a school boy when he was taken for training, a freshman in college, and didn't even finish out the year. He has never had a trade or business and never worked a day away from home.—Mrs. E. R., Spooner, Wis.

A. Income taxes on salaries of men in the armed services have not been waived except for the duration. Where men serve overseas, a waiver is usually issued, but the due date of income taxes is the 15th day of the third month after official termination of the war. Exemptions include $1,500 of service pay and mustering out pay. Would suggest that you consult the nearest office of the Internal Revenue bureau and they can tell you the exact status of your son's income tax.

Q. My brother died in the service November 8, 1945, and I thought his insurance was made to me because he told me it was. But when he died, I wrote to the Veterans administration and found that he had made his insurance to a lady he only worked for, not a relative at all. He has a father living, also five brothers and myself, the only sister. He stayed with me and worked for this woman and he had given her and her husband as foster parents, although he was in my custody and I had to look after him until he went into the navy at the age of 18. This woman got around him and had him to make his insurance to her. She is about 38 and he 18. Is there anything I can do about this insurance to get it for us . . . myself, father and brothers? His National Service Life Insurance amounts to $10,000. Please tell me what I can do.—A. T., Seaford, Del.

A. If I were you, I would consult a lawyer. From your letter, it could be that your brother may have misrepresented his beneficiary since the law limits beneficiaries to a certain range of next of kin, except where persons have been acting as foster parents, or in parentis. If the lady and her husband were not acting as foster parents, you may have a legal case. But consult an attorney.

Q. I was wounded and am drawing a total disability pension of $115 a month. Now I have a chance to take a job and as I feel able to work, will taking a job result in getting a cut down on my pension?—V. H., Detroit, Mich.

A. Not as long as you are rated 100 per cent disabled.

Q. Is there any chance of the army discharging men over 37 years of age soon with only eight months or little more of service?—A. N. P., Red Wing, Minn.

A. Men 38 years of age or older are eligible to apply for discharge.

Set Up This Table Where You Want It

IF YOU need a fold-away serving table or if you like to load a tray and carry meals to some cool spot, here is the combination with the special features you have been looking for.

The folding stand is the right height to use with comfortable chairs and the plywood tray with a gallery around three sides and hand-hold openings, fits securely over this base. The construction of both pieces is so simple that you will want to make a number of them.

An actual-size pattern for sides of tray, with illustrated directions for cutting and assembling tray and stand, is available to readers for 15c postpaid. Ask for pattern No. 268, and address:

CAN'T YOU SLEEP?

WHEN the stress of modern living gets "on your nerves" a good sedative can do a lot to lessen nervous tension, to make you more comfortable, to permit restful sleep.

Next time a day's work and worry or a night's wakefulness makes you Irritable, Restless or Jumpy—gives you Nervous Headache or Nervous Indigestion, try

Miles NERVINE

(Liquid or Effervescent Tablets)
Miles Nervine is a time-tested sedative that has been bringing relief from Functional Nervous Disturbances for sixty years yet is as up-to-date as this morning's newspaper. Liquid 25c and $1.00. Effervescent tablets 35c and 75c. CAUTION—Take only as directed.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Swanson, son Gene, daughter and son in law, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Merritt, Jr. spent a week's vacation at Rhinelander, Wis., fishing. They were called home by the death of Mrs. Swanson's mother who passed away last week at Western Springs. Burial was at Thomson, Ill.

Celebrating Birthdays this week are: Mrs. Harry Barenz on July 2 and Mrs. Tillie Steinhagen on July 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Miller and family and friends spent Monday at the Indiana Sand Dunes at a family picnic.

At the social meeting of the Tinley Park Royal Neighbors held June 25th the oracle Mrs. Margaret Miller, gave her report of the Supreme Convention which she attended as a delegate at Cincinnati, Ohio June 8 thru the 15th.

This convention was held in the Netherlands Plaza hotel, 48 stories high and from the tower of this hotel a beautiful panorama was enjoyed. The city is located on a low level surrounded by hills.

Every State in the union was represented by delegates and also by their talents on the entertainment parts with singers and tap dancing etc.

Each delegate received gifts and souvenirs from their Supreme Officer and from each state and beautiful gifts were also presented the Supreme Officers, also to the old Royal Neighbors Home at Davenport, Iowa. A gold letter opener was the gift from the Supreme Camp.

At the banquet held in the beautiful Mirror room, a discharged captain of the army was the speaker and he spoke most interestingly of India.

The Ohio State Camp conducted a memorial service and also demonstrated the ritualistic part and drills. It was all very splendidly done.

Mrs. Miller, Tinley Park delegate was quite thrilled to have had the honor to cast her vote for the Supreme Officers and later to see them installed. She also enjoyed a trip on the Ohio river on an excursion steamer and crossed over to Kentucky.

The Tinley Park Royal Neighbors have changed their meeting place, to the Village hall. Next meeting is a social one.

The Disinherited

by Dr. Alfred P. Haake

Alfred P. Haake, Ph. D., Mayor of Park Ridge, Ill., is a noted Economist, Business Consultant, Lecturer and Author.

The boy grew up with the flocks and herds he tended in the fields. The rain fell and the sun beat down upon him. His flesh grew hard, his muscles tough, and his skin bronzed and hairy.

He won strength from the elements he overcame and his sturdiness was the delight of his father. He was of the breed of pioneers who tame the earth to nourish and serve man.

In the full strength of manhood he prepared to take over his inheritance. But an evil day brought him in from the fields weary and famished. The cunning of his mother and brother did the rest.

Seeing him coming, they had prepared a tasty stew of lamb and lentils. The savory odor assailed Esau's nostrils and spurred the already ravenous hunger that drew him home.

"Swear that Jacob shall take thy place as elder brother and inherit thy father's blessings and goods, and thou shalt have to eat," said Rebecca, his mother. It is recorded that Esau yielded to his hunger and gave up his rich inheritance for a mess of pottage to satisfy his immediate hunger. He lived to see the rich lands and flocks he had tended turned over to his cunning brother in payment for the earlier temporary relief.

A nation grew up out of the wilderness of a newly discovered continent. The men and women who peopled that wilderness came seeking freedom. They stayed to win a living out of the soil with their bare hands. They endured hardships that developed the iron in their souls and laid the foundation of the greatest nation on the face of the earth.

But the people grew weary of the eternal vigilance that is the price of liberty. They saw the craven defeatism of foreign countries lead to paternalistic governments and relief for the people from the responsibility of doing their own thinking and providing their own security. A great depression in the United States furnished the opportunity for the emissaries of foreign

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3
by Sandy King

Cruising Along: On this hot summer's night, let me just cruise along slowly over the typewriter keys, and tell you in leisurely style what its like to spend a day at the airport, visiting and flying.

Preliminary: On the way to Rubinkam I stopped in to see "Doc" Stevenson, famous flying dentist of Harvey. Doc was knee deep in airmaps, ideas and plans, getting set to add another exciting chapter to his book already well filled with top flight adventures! When he charts a flight, hang on to your helmets. This time he's heading for Central America in a Cub. His plane will be one of a fleet of approximately 8 to spread wings over Guatemala, St. Salvador, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Panama City, a country rich with romance and thrills. To "Doc" the trip seems a little routine because some of it will be over airline routes. During over 1,000 hours of flying Doc has navigated his way over all America, Mexico and Alaska, managing to find his way over uncharted territory.

I, for one, envy you Doc, and wish you a world of happy flying, you're a challenge to the rest of us to pull up anchor and get groovin'.

Green Baby: At the field, Arnie Holt was shining up his "baby", a sleek green and tan PT19 that he reconstructed from the landing gear to the tip of the prop. It was no surprise to anyone that the plane earned its NC. And as the PT streaks across the sky it beautifully testifies that Arnie's a keen mechanic as well as a flyer. More dramatic evidence that Arnie's plane is on the beam is the fact that all the flyers are clamoring to fly it. Fred Gatey and his wife Rivia, hit the skytrall in the ship and came down with happy grins. Flight Instructor Ray Starzyk was next and put the PT thru some paces. He cavorted thru the blue, most of time with the plane upside down.

Breakfast Flight Invite: Among Civil Air Patrol members on the field for a meeting called by Lt. Col. Gordon DaCosta, Wing Commander, was W/O B. Kaye Smith of Harlem Squadron 613-1. While waiting for the Commander to arrive in an Army plane piloted by Capt. G. A. Cloward, AAF Liaison Officer for CAP, W/O Smith announced an invitation to all flyers to come to a breakfast for coffee, and courtesy of her Squadron. The passwords are Victory Field, Warsaw, Ind. on July 21st, 9 AM to 1 PM. (Bad weather date is July 28th). Harlem members who will be there to greet you include Lts. Eugene Zukas, John Neubauer, Wm. Garts, Regina DeVine and Ann Ohm.

Playtime: All during the afternoon, local pilots were playing tag in the sky, breezing along in Rubinkam's new ships, to the delight of the watchers. American Airline Captain Dick Case was upstairs in a plane considerably smaller than he usually flies.

"Doc" Brennon, "Doc" Kingston, Jack Morton, Ray Robinson were all kicking the controls and I tried the cowboy maneuver, a loop and a spin.

That's all for now.

By Walter A. Sheard

This dispatch was filed from the Atomic bomb testing area only shortly before the first test bomb was scheduled to be dropped.

ABOARD THE USS APPALACHIAN—BIKINI ATOLL (Via Navy Radio)—This reporter does not intend to delve into the scientific aspects of this atomic bomb test, leaving that to the scientific writers and the scientists themselves. This test is primarily a military experiment to determine how the United States navy and other armed services can figuratively "keep its powder dry" in the face of any future atomic warfare.

The experiments however by their very nature and the various tests which are to be made of atomic energy will produce by-products of knowledge in the fields of biochemistry, biology and medicine.

Further knowledge will be gained also in the fields of radio, photography, geology, fish life and all the sciences which apply to ocean life.

Many Conjectures

A tour of this ship and a visit to the staterooms where the newspaper men are housed conjectures on the outcome of this bomb test measured only by the number of newspaper men aboard. This is almost true of the scientific writers themselves, for most all have different viewpoints on the possible developments.

These conjectures run the gamut of total destruction by tidal wave or earthquake of the entire task force in the vicinity of the bomb down to the theory that the bomb might even prove a dud forecasts of the destruction of the atomic bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki made by the scientists connected with Uncle Sam's military establishments were fairly accurate and this reporter is willing to discard the more fantastic conjectures and string along with some of these more conservative forecasts.

Earthquake or Tidal Wave?

In the first place Bikini lagoon, where the bomb will be dropped, is roughly 25 miles long and 10 miles wide and the water averages 100 feet in depth and one scientist likened the dropping of the bomb into such an expansion of water and air to a spark from a welder's torch dropped into a 30 acre lake. Scientists admit that the bomb may cause a slight earthquake and tidal wave but that in comparison with nature's earthquakes it will have no destructive violence and will only be recorded upon seismographic instruments. The release of atomic energy at the given point of the bomb lying tissues, would result in chemical changes in the proteins of the tissues, in some cases of sufficient intensity to kill the tissues and in other cases likely to produce a new kind of living tissue or a new variety of organ. It is a well known fact that x-rays have created this phenomenon in living tissues and the radio active rays from the bomb are practically the same as x-rays. Thus a man who comes in contact with these radio active particles may well become sterile and be chemically changed as to other characteristics. On the other hand, some scientists predict a tremendous tidal wave as result of dislodging a huge landslide along the slope of Bikini atoll which rises some 14,000 feet from the floor of the ocean. Another predicts the bomb will crack open the ocean floor and let the water into the molten matter beneath the floor resulting in a tremendous volcanic explosion. These predictions, however, are generally discounted.

This reporter anticipates plenty of action and plenty to write about when this bomb is dropped by the B29 over the target array of naval ships. The most dramatic will be the second test when a bomb is detonated below the surface of the water in the midst of what is left of the target ships. The handicap under which the lay members of the press work is, however, that we will not know nor will we be told whether or not these bombs exploded at full efficiency or whether or not in fact they were duds.

burst will in the opinion of these scientists release heat and energy at that spot of a nature never before experienced upon the surface of the earth but its effects will be confined to a relatively small area. One scientist declared that the radio activity released from the bomb, if absorbed by

Utah Has Set 1947 as Year For Centennial Celebration

SALT LAKE CITY.—On July 24, this year, Pioneer Day will be celebrated in every community in Utah to mark the date when, 99 years ago, Brigham Young and his 142 travelers entered Great Salt Lake valley.

As on each July 24, the 1946 celebration will be one of the biggest events of the year. Since July 24 is a state holiday, all business will be suspended and covered wagons, Mormon handcarts, and old-timers will pass in review in parades all over the intermountain territory.

But the big celebration will be held in 1947, which marks the 100th anniversary of the arrival of Brigham Young and his group. The state legislature in 1939 passed a bill setting apart the year 1947 for the centennial.

'This Is the Place.'

One of the features will be a wagon train of pioneers, starting at the site of the winter quarters of 1846 near Omaha and following the original pioneers' trail into Salt Lake valley. The train will enter at the spot where Brigham Young looked out over the desert and said: "This is the place." That was on July 24, 1847.

The centennial commission appointed by Gov. Herbert Maw include John M. Wallace, chairman of the finance committee; Ward C. Holbrook, John F. Fitzpatrick, Frederick P. Champ, Judge James A. Howell and Gus P. Backman, members. Backman was also selected as director of the centennial celebration. Albert J. Southwick, Salt Lake City

Devoted Lifetime to Making World Clean

MANKATO, MINN.—R. G. Bachert, age 70, has devoted most of his life to making this a cleaner world.

"Broom making is my hobby, vocation and recreation," he declares after 58 years in the business and for half a century the owner of the Mankato broom works.

Bachert makes five kinds of regular brooms, whisk brooms, toy brooms and "miss" or junior brooms, and estimates that he has turned out over a million of them.

Southern Girl Is Mechanical Engineer

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—Odds were pretty heavy in September, 1942, when a 17-year-old freshman, Mary Porter Fain, entered the school of mechanical engineering at the University of Tennessee, that she would change her course before completing requirements for her degree. At least that is what the professors thought.

But on May 3, this year, when Mary got her bachelor of science degree and became the first girl to finish in mechanical engineering at the university, the professors had to eat their words. During her entire four years, Miss Fain managed to keep up with her male classmates.

Mary intends to use her knowledge, too. She wants to do design and research on engines or household appliances. A native of Murphy, N. C., she hopes to work somewhere in the south, but she will go up north among the Yankees if the right job is offered.

Great Salt Lake Will Dry up in Next 300 Years

SALT LAKE CITY.—If the general downward trend in the level of the Great Salt lake for the past 96 years continues for another 300 years, the lake will be as dry as the famous Bonneville salt flats, according to Ralf R. Woolley, senior hydraulic engineer, U. S. geological survey.

Supporting this speculation is the fact that Great Salt lake is a mere remnant anyway—all that is left of a once great fresh water lake that, in ages past, covered as much area as the present Lake Michigan. Evidence of this lake are numerous in the geology of the region, noticed by practically everyone living here.

The recording of Great Salt lake elevations started in 1850, three years after the arrival of the Mormon pioneers. Since that time, although there have been ups and downs, the general trend of the lake has been a loss of one foot of depth every 13 years.

Found a Cure for Plant 'Wilt' and 'Athlete's Foot'

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The department of agriculture scientists started out to find a way to battle troublesome tomato plant "wilt." They discovered a chemical called "tomatin" which combats the wilt.

But they discovered something else, although they insist it is still "in the test tube stage." Tomatin will combat fungus organisms which plague human beings, and may be the source of a new drug to fight "athlete's foot." They have found it powerfully active against the widely prevalent ringworm fungi which often attacks the feet, hands, face and scalp.

Roosters Motored to Town for Night Life

VALENTINE, NEBR.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Roe parked their pickup on Main street one evening recently, and shortly afterward Buck Junod, who was standing near by, heard roosters crowing.

"But we don't have any roosters in the pickup," protested the Roos.

Junod made an investigation, however, and found three roosters. They were perched on the drive shaft beneath the car where they had gone to roost and ridden to town with the Roos.

Electrical Drying Soft Corn Practical

Ohio Farmer Develops Own Economical System

The problem of drying soft corn is not the difficult chore it once was, according to farmers who have experimented successfully with fan-operated, forced air systems installed in their own cribs.

Heat is not an essential factor in most installations, particularly when drying operations are conducted in the fall or early spring. The danger in cribbing immature corn is that it may spoil before cold weather arrives to restrain spoilage processes during the winter, or mold during the first few warm spring days.

Forced air drying is practical and economical without heat in temperatures as low as 50 degrees. Higher temperatures, however, speed up and cut costs of drying operations. Karl Mohr, Ohio farmer, for example, reported having spent $10 for electricity to crib-dry 60 tons of immature corn by forcing air through it for 100 continuous hours during a period when daytime temperature reached 80 degrees.

Mohr's drying arrangement is typical of workable, successful types which farmers can install themselves. His 35 by 10-foot, tight-sided crib has a slatted floor, with 1 1/4 by 2-inch slats installed edge-wise and spaced five-eighths of an inch apart. A 42-inch fan, driven by a 5-horsepower motor, blows air into a closed tunnel extending under the entire crib. Air, forced under the crib, moves up naturally through the slatted floor and out vents in the top of the crib, taking excessive moisture with it. Smaller fans and motors will work just as well with less extensive drying operations.

Mohr's crib vents serve a double purpose. In addition to being exhausts for air, they also serve as openings into which corn is elevated for storage in the crib.

Farm Made Wheelbarrow

Six pieces of scrap pipe, a few lengths of scrap iron, a standard rubber tired wheel, and a few minutes use of arc welder will produce this handy wheelbarrow for the farm.

Short pipe sections fused to the front end of the pipe frame and handle members made ideal bearings for the wheel axle.

Know Your Breed Polled Hereford

By W. J. DRYDEN

Since 1902 American cattlemen have developed within the Hereford, a naturally hornless strain—the Polled Hereford. Since the early work done by Benjamin Tomkins in 1742, with English oxen, the breed is now classed as one of the greatest of beef cattle.

There are now some 200,000 on the official records. When original hornless bulls are mated with registered horned Hereford cows, about half the resulting calves are hornless. First known exhibit of hornless cattle was at Omaha fair in 1898. Today they take a leading part in every fair or show entered.

Vaccinate for Control Of Sleeping Sickness

Horses should be vaccinated in areas where sleeping sickness has been a problem in recent years. It is believed that the virus of the disease is carried over from year to year by birds, and it has also been found that chickens can harbor the virus, according to the American Foundation for Animal Health. Mosquitoes and other blood-sucking insects pass the virus on to the horses and human beings.

THERE was a pleasant period of existence during which one could turn to the sporting page with the prospect of reading about sports.

"On the sports page," as the late William Lyon Phelps once told me, "you read about competitive achievement—a round of golf in 67, a home run with two on, a three-hit game, a long run, a thrilling horse race, a story to lift you above the humdrum of dull days."

Those features still exist—but lately they have been clogged with strikes, unions at work, Mexican lawsuits, football players being haled before the courts for contract troubles, lawyers' pleas, judges' decisions. The gaunt shadow of Blackstone has fallen rather drearily across the scene. The courts are becoming enmeshed in football, baseball and racing cases, with lawyers, judges, union leaders and politicians hording in on what once were tests of skill, courage and stamina. It all is part of the badly befogged times.

There isn't any questioning the fact that many things have been out of line. Neither football nor baseball contracts can be held legally valid when the employer can hold a man for life, but also fire him on 10 days' notice. That, of course, is not a contract. It may be a necessary way to handle certain intricate situations, but there is nothing legal about it. Club owners in baseball long before this should have set up a minimum big league wage and also should have made some provisions for division, with the player in question of the price for which the player was sold or traded. Many baseball club owners are extremely liberal, others are not—strictly to the contrary. The ballplayer deserves better protection than he has received in too many cases heretofore.

In professional football we read where most of the clubs in the two leagues sign up from 50 to 60 players apiece—but their league rules say they can keep only 33 of these players. What about the contracts the others have signed—those who will be released on short notice? If a player can be fired on quick notice, why shouldn't he jump on quick notice for better pay?

It is a tough problem, since baseball and football are strictly competitive games wherein certain ball parks, because of their size, such as the Yankee stadium, will draw more paid admissions by mid-June than smaller parks in cities such as St. Louis will draw over the course of the season. It isn't often that a Tom Yawkey comes along who has little interest in the financial side of his team and who is willing to spend millions to get a winner.

What the Future Holds

All this happens during the best season baseball ever has dreamed of in the way of crowds and public interest; and to what looked to be the best season professional football ever has known.

Just how the sports public will react to all these complications still is a guess. It may be that the public has taken such a beating from so many wrecking strikes that it has become numb and no longer feels any pain. Every side has been protected and defended except that of the public, which happens to represent more than 100 million of our population. These 100 million apparently don't count. They are only around to be shoved aside.

Just how the keyed-up fanatics who pay the toll will react to all this outside trouble is anybody's guess. The odds are that most of them won't bother. The public always has been a glutton for a beating, and habit is hard to change.

There are many tangles and tough breaks to beset the athlete. Those drafted or sold to tail-end teams get all the worst of it. A college player can pick his own campus and most of the better high school players like to be enrolled with winning teams. It's better to win than to act as a door mat on an outclassed squad.

It may be that a union could help in professional baseball and football, but it would have been a better way if the leading players had arranged their own organizations to deal with club owners. An outsider stepping into the working clubhouse of a ball club or a football team to harangue the players is something out of line.

It wouldn't have been a bad idea if baseball and football players followed the lead of the golfers, who have had their Professional Golfers' association working ably for some time. This organization has been well directed by Ed Dudley, the president and a capable board of directors and other officials.

The one cheerful note in all this is that a large part of the public is turning more than ever to the playing side rather than toward that of the spectator. This is the healthiest sign we've seen in many years.

To give your dinner party an air of the unusual, serve a small scoop of orange sherbet floating in chilled apple juice.

Here's a way to hang your criss-cross curtains so you won't have to use a double rod. Takes a little sewing on your part, but in the end none of the rod will show. Simply baste the top curtain to the lower one over the curtain's top row of stitching. Run the curtain rod through the heading on the under curtain. Top one gathers with it.

On any small apron sew numerous pockets. Into these slip your toilet articles. Fold the apron and put it in your suitcase. Then when you need a freshening up, toilet articles are where you need them.

When the edges joined in a seam are cut on the bias, it is helpful to baste a piece of paper in with the two edges of fabric. After the seam is stitched tear away the paper. This little trick keeps the bias edges from stretching.

INSECT-KILLING PAINT

with DDT

ONE APPLICATION A YEAR DOES THE JOB!

One application a year rids a building of flies, mosquitoes and 100 other pesky insects. ONE APPLICATION A YEAR provides an attractive, sanitary, white interior paint finish.

One application a year saves time and labor. No need to reapply every few weeks. SUPERIOR 365 is a laboratory developed cold water paint that provides excellent coverage and year around protection from insects. Easily applied by brush or spray. No objectionable odor—no fire hazard.

Economical—Costs about 1c per 3 sq. feet
25 lb. carton makes 5 gallons of insect-killing paint for only $4.95

EISENHOWER'S STORY OF WAR

Eisenhower's own story of the war, one of the most important documents in history, was released June 28, by Arco Publishing Co., New York.

This is the personal, definite account by the Supreme Commander of the world's greatest military operation, from the day of invasion to the Day of Victory in Europe. The book tells the first-hand story of the planning and execution of the invasion; the landings in Normandy; the breaching of the Atlantic wall; the strategic attacks and retreats; the disappointments and successes which led to the final crushing victory over the Nazi machine.

Eisenhower's own story of the war comes at a climatic moment, for now, when the conflicting reports of a host of observers have flamed into controversy, with serious charges receiving circulation on a world scale, the one man qualified to present all the facts speaks out. The book is certain to create international discussion and to take its place as an indispensable source book for future historians.

Eisenhower's own story of the war will be available in two editions where ever books are sold: paper bound at $1.00 and bound in cloth and boards at $2.50.
